

ABSTRACT

A secure Internet-accessible document control system and method that facilitates the secure storage of documents on a computer system and permits selected authorized users to access the stored documents through the Internet from remote locations. The document control system and method being particularly well suited for litigation management in cases where a plurality of confidentiality levels govern access to the documents.

10